"Moving to a new space allowed us to put a definite style to our company that expresses our business and our work culture. We're not attorneys with big heavy mahogany desks, and we didn't want the standard systems furniture look either. We liked izzy's furniture because it's modular, changeable. Its design has clean lines. We also liked the airiness. There's plenty of leg room, and it's physically light and easy to move around. The table tops are made of wood and have geometric shapes, which really appeals to our engineers. Their work is very structural and analytical. It looks great."

The Need

With no conference room for important client meetings and barely enough space for its own employees, LarryWalker Associates was bursting at the seams. The firm's owner decided it was time to relocate – moving the main office that was spread between two vintage Victorian homes near Sacramento, California, to the second floor of a newly constructed, mixed-use office space. With help from architects and designers, LWA designed a space that would truly be their own. The facility team also wanted to create a fresh, clean look with new furniture that reflected the company's work culture and appealed to its largely young professional team. But timing was tight. To meet the move date, new furnishings needed to be selected, ordered, produced and delivered within two months.

izzy's Solution

izzydesign was the strategic blueprint for cool and affordable furniture. Delivering on time and on budget, izzy engineered a furnishings solution that included personal work tables, personal storage units and archival storage units to equip 30 private offices and a conference room. The new izzy products helped LWA shed a hodgepodge of furniture accumulated over two decades – and replace it with clean, fresh furniture designs, styled in classic geometric shapes and a variety of sizes. Rich custom-matched cherry-stained veneers for table work surfaces and personal storage fronts created a warm, welcoming professional environment. Seating is provided courtesy of Maxwell, izzy's high-tech, award-winning mesh office chair.
